The Liston B. Ramsey Center for Regional Studies presents

“River Cane: Cultural Workhorse and Ecological Powerhouse”

David Cozzo, Ph.D.
Project Director for the Revitalization of Traditional Cherokee Artisan Resources (RTCAR)

Dr. Cozzo will discuss the cultural applications of river cane in Cherokee material culture, both as an artist’s resource and as a food source. The second half of the talk will give ecological perspective on river cane: its role with wildlife and domesticated animals, its ecological function in the riparian habitats, and factors leading to its demise.

12 p.m. on March 3, 2015
Ramsey Center, First Floor Renfro Library
Mars Hill University

For more information, contact Hannah Furgiuele
Ramsey Center Program Coordinator
828-689-1571 or hfurgiuele@mhu.edu